Thanks for asking. It's Theme Park Tycoon 2, a Roller Coaster Tycoon clone that brought back a lot of my capitalist theme park-building instincts from my childhood. I've been going out of my way to avoid playing it so that I can actually finish this article. I also like jumping into random obbys, like this McDonald's-themed one.

Before creating any custom design to sell the player will need to make sure they have already created an item of clothing. It's possible to upload a skin of the clothing directly to Roblox, thereby showing the design on your character and making it available for use.

I appreciate that reading this may make Roblox sound like a scary place for your kids to spend their digital time in but rest assured this is not the case. If you follow the steps above and educate your kids on how to stay safe and let you know when something isn't right, they will have a great time playing any of the games on the platform. My son has even got me playing with him and this can be a great way to fully understand what it is your kids are doing.

Until recently, though, I didn't really understand what Roblox actually was, despite the app having been around since 2006. (Just to give you an idea of how long that is in tech years, the App Store for iOS launched in 2008.) So I spent some time in the world of Roblox to help explain what all the fuss is about.

You can include a random virtual item for sale in your game and the price is entirely your choice. The only rule is that you must disclose the numerical odds to the player before they make their purchase.
